BALANCED NEWS. FEARLESS VIEWS

Jews honor Quezon on his 134th birthday today

By Nena C. Domingo

AS THE country commemorates the 134th birthday today, Aug. 19, of Manuel L. Quezon, he is also honored by thousands of Jewish families who have survived and prospered because they found a home in Manila at the earliest time in their history as a race.

It was a point of no-return. Germans and Austrian Jews—1,200 of them—narrowly escaped Adolf Hitler's gas chambers just before the German dictator rounded up 6 million Jews who were eventually returned and murdered in his concentration camps.

"The stark tale of a Jewish family's escape from Nazi Germany is the story of a Jewish family's escape from Nazi Germany."

"This clarifies the connection between the two stories regarding the source of such information."

INTERIOR Secretary Jesse Robredo called his wife Maria Leonor "Loni" Gerona Robredo at about 4:30 p.m. yesterday to say that the plane flying him from Cebu to Catanduanes Sur was having engine problems.

Later, a lawyer made this confirmation, adding that the call was immediately cut off and there was no contact with Robredo after that.

Malacanan has confirmed that the last-known flight before plane crash Robredo was on board with three others had gone missing after it crashed in the waters off the shoreline of Marikina City at about 5 p.m. yesterday.

The private aircraft was heading for Naga City, Robredo's hometown, from Cebu when one of the pilots sent a distress signal.

Project Noah cool, laugh at clouds, sing in the rain

GMA doc's diagnosis not Makati Med's

MANILA Medical Center outpatient clinic was held last May. Pundit yesterday noted in the hospital that Dr. Roberto V. Arasaola's remarks on the health condition of former President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo in a press conference on Friday "were not MDC's statement."

Families said that the press conference was held at the Green Cafe behind the hospital and not at the MMC. A short statement from the MMC Patient Relations Officer further clarified that: "The interview and press statement, and its subsequent release, that took place yesterday (Friday) afternoon at Green Cafe on Delta Road

St., Makati City regarding Rep. Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's health condition came from Dr. Roberto V. Arasaola, reflective of his official function as her attending physician. "This clarifies the connection between the two stories regarding the source of such information."

WILDLIFE TRAFFICKER BARRED

'STRIKE THREE'

By Elly Yap

THREE strikes and you're out.

An alleged wildlife trafficker from China who earlier was caught bringing in the Philippines and barred from entering the Philippines again, the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) has said.

Environmental Secretary Ramon Alunan III (DENR) has barred the Philippine consulate in Manila, China, that a wildlife on the island for this application by Zhang Ping Ping, a Chinese national allegedly involved in smuggling wildlife into Hong Kong.

In a letter to the DENR, Consul General Andrew Angelito Gao and his office would prevent Zhang's entry into the country.

"We are very thankful for Mr. Gao's decision as there is no room for such kind of invasion where it causes it to the island and stopped our wildlife resources, especially those considered endemic and endangered," said Yap in a statement.

He expressed his appreciation to Zhang Ping Ping for his role of efforts in writing to the Philippines the wildlife interest by Zhang.

"Inasmuch as we have had laws to protect the country's rich biodiversity, the environmental community also recognizes the importance of protecting wildlife that are endemic or indigenous to any country or locality and prevent them from being illegally transported to and up as pets or items, as seen with the tigers," Yap said.

He said that strictly regulating the trade in endemic species would also prevent their possible introduction as foreign or invasive species that may later pose harm to the country's biodiversity.

Citing news reports, the DENR said that Zhang was first apprehended in Hong Kong on Feb. 8 for the carrying

DFA vetting new Cambodian envoy

By Terri Quintanilla

CARROBBI has appointed a career diplomat as its new ambassador to the Philippines, signaling Phnom Penh's intent to move its relations with Manila forward despite a rift that has over the decades of a regional position on the West Philippine Sea-South China Sea dispute.

Candidate press reported over the weekend that Phnom Penh had named Thut Pheak, a veteran diplomat, to take over from Ambassador Han Boreyda following the latter's recall earlier this month over a reminder made about the Philippines' position on the West Philippine Sea.

The Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) confirmed it was vetting the incoming ambassador but did not say when she was expected to take her post.

"It will go through the process of granting an appointment, we shall proceed in accordance with the DFA's procedures," said DFA spokesperson Assistant Secretary Rod Francisco, referring to the document that was being presented to the executive branch.

Francisco, Secretary of the DFA, said that he was "not problem with the success of an appointment," reflecting appreciation about the relations with Phnom Penh.

The Phnom Penh that reported the fact, an spokeswoman said, was appointed in Manila following the recall. She had also served as deputy assistant chief at Cambodia's Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Cambodia's ambassador was reportedly recalled after it had been recalled information that Phnom Penh had selected "a lady that's quite high in the military" to become its new envoy to Manila.

The first lady's spouse, Cambodia's Foreign Minister, reportedly said that he would not be seen as a "strong" move, an explicit attempt was "to normal diplomatic relations."

Cambodia recalled its two-month-old ambassador to Manila after the DFA issued a note verbale asking for explanation for a conflicting article by a senior diplomat in a Philippine newspaper.

In his opinion piece, Francisco of the Philippines and Manila, both countries' relations to move with a link to the West Philippine Sea, of "any political" interpretation of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) to issue a singular stand on the dispute with China during a meeting of ministers in Cambodia in July.

The letter was to request to Philippine Foreign Undersecretary Wilfredo Ballesteros that was widely published in Philippine newspapers in July when the diplomatic note was released.

FINDING A POT OF GOLD AT HOME!

H & J JEWELLERS ARE HOLDING A GRAND EVENT FOR THE VALUATION AND PURCHASING OF JEWELRY AND OTHER PRECIOUS OBJECTS

A STORY OF A COUPLE WHO RECEIVES INSTANT CASH FOR THEIR OLD JEWELRY AND WATCHES.

A couple from London England had a lucky day when they decided that they would go to an event where jewelry professionals evaluated and bought their old jewelry and unused objects.

Among these items was an old watch from the 1930's. The watch was still working and was inherited from his grandparents. Also, they had a couple of broken rings, small gems and small jewelry pieces that they had no intention of using.

They were pleased when they received good news regarding the value of the items. Andrew Harding, Professional Jeweller said, "The couple didn't even realize how the total amount sold had been 1 coin, then they were talking about thousands of BRITISH POUNDS."

A HIDDEN TREASURE:

Like most readers, you've always had a dream of winning the lottery or finding a pot of gold, right? Lots of couples are still ignoring the fact that they have hidden treasures sitting in their homes and old objects and jewelry which they've totally ignored its value.

Mr. Harding says, "with all those years estimating jewelry and working with gems, I can assure you a dozen stories of people that thought me objects that they thought had no value at all. I'm sure readers have an object in their mind right now as they read these lines."

WE ARE LOOKING FOR:

- Gold and Silver Jewelry
- Chains, Rings, Coins
- Diamonds and Gems
- Rolex, Patek Philippe, Audemars Piguet watches

(any condition / working or not)

ESTIMATING THE VALUE:

Mr. Harding says, "We will be estimating all objects for free and there is no obligation at all for you to sell your goods. The objects we are looking for are mostly broken rings, watches and old chains. Old gems are also very welcome."

We are offering an immediate payment in cash, if your treasure is very small or of any amount, we will always be happy to take a look at it and estimate it.

The event runs from August 22 to 26 at the Makati Shangri-La and EDSA Shangri-La, Manila from 11:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. Don't miss it!

Bohol farms are drying up

By Phyllis Niguelas, AgriPress Staff

TUBIGON, Bohol—It's officially water war and Bohol farmers have started at least waiting to crack for lack of water.

Dried rice fields have turned yellowish green almost a month of no rain in Bohol, caused the local banks of Cebu's Visayas.

Water level in a major dam in Pinar del Rio has reached critically low levels, said Lito P. Lopez, acting Bohol provincial agricultural Officer Edgar Chato/Bohol Agriculture Secretary Proceso Alcala to conduct seed sowing operations to ease the suffering of farmers, like Philippine Benguet, Jr., of Benguet College, Benguet town.

Benguet said he has been playing his role to save his play and from a good loss by October or November. The seed sowing operations had turned yellowish and their fields had dried up due to lack of water.

Unlike in other areas in Bohol which are irrigated, Benguet said his farm, and other farmers in the area, are dependent on rain. "If there are no rains, our play will die," he said.

If they can't have a good harvest, Benguet said the farmers are in losing while waiting for the next planting season.

Of at least 47,000 hectares of rice field in Bohol, 24,000 are irrigated through dams, small water canals and secondary canals. The rest of the 23,000 hectares of farms rely on rain.

Farmers will be asked applications to be able to adjust crops to drought in their area.

In the, three towns have reported that their rice fields had dried up and farmers there are Cebu, Benguet and Cebu.

He said some farmers were lucky enough to be able to harvest their play before the dry spell hit.

Farmers who planted late are the most hurt by the lack of water, he said.

If the dry spell continued, the Philippine Dam in Pinar del Rio will eventually dry up, and Benguet said.

The dam supplies water to more than 4,700 hectares of rice fields in Pinar del Rio and parts of Benguet and San Miguel Tondo.

Farmers said the dam stopped releasing water on Thursday because it was drying up.

Water level in the dam reached to a 700 and 1 meter. If the level goes down to less than a meter, water will no longer flow to the rice fields.

To maintain a stable water supply, water level in the dam should be 5 to 6 meters.

CRACKS are starting to appear in rice farms in Tubigon, Bohol, that are drying up because of lack of water. (J. Niguelas/AgriPress Staff)

Delay in cases vs foreign club execs assailed

CONGRESSIONAL lawyers have expressed strong objection to what they said were delaying tactics being employed by the defense counsel of eight foreigners accused by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) of illegally selling membership shares of the small sports club (PSC) and who were reportedly to be arraigned on Aug. 14 at the Metropolitan Regional Trial Court.

Prosecution lawyer Ben Arduña Salazar and SEC lawyer Antonio Pangasinan, in open court, said the "case has been postponed" is a deliberate move to further delay by another 60 days the arraignment of the eight foreigners.

The lawyers of the foreigners sought the adjournment while awaiting the court's ruling on a petition for review that they filed. Salazar said the arraignment had been delayed already and "the filing of the petition for review is not justified for the suspension of arraignment."

Atty. Marlon B. Department of Justice prosecution, supported the position of Salazar. The eight foreigners—Jonathan Thorp, J. Edgar Corrales, Matthew Preston, Thomas Whitford, Andrew Yates, Ben Simeon, Bob Whelan and Brian Christian Goss—were being charged with violating Philippine laws governing the sale of shares or securities.

They attended the hearing last Tuesday at the Philippine SEC Branch No. 238, Judge Noriel Bulosan agreed to delay their arraignment by another 60 days, or two months.

The foreigners are all officers of SEC to Philippine City, one of the oldest in the country.

The DOJ had requested the foreigners' motion for reconsideration.

A team of DOJ prosecutors said no new arguments had been presented by the foreigners that would negate the department's withdrawing the charges against them.

In 2009, SEC filed sufficient basis to prosecute the complaint against the foreigners, that was filed by SEC members Eduardo C. a Filipino-based businessman, and lawyer Richard Salazar.

On Oct. 26, 2011, an investigating panel of the DOJ issued probable cause to charge Thorp and the other foreigners of violating SEC rules.

"These in evidence to prove that respondent [and] others offered and sold promissory membership shares" without authority to do so, said the DOJ panel in its ruling.

"Being securities, the membership shares are required to be registered with the SEC before they may be sold or offered for sale to the public," said the SEC in its motion to allow foreigners' position to push the case against them.

THE PHILIPPINE COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS ON THE IMPORTANCE OF THE REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH BILL

The Philippine College of Physicians (PCP), the premier organization of adult medicine specialists in the country and one of the largest specialty divisions of the Philippine Medical Association (PMA), strongly believes that the unacceptable maternal mortality rates and disturbing number of abortions in our country call for an imperative to actively promote reproductive health through access to health care and education.

The PCP actively supports the Reproductive Health Bill otherwise known as an act providing for responsible parenthood, reproductive health and human development.

FACTS:

- (1) With a maternal mortality rate, i.e. no. of mothers dying because of pregnancies, of 221/100,000 live births, the Philippines is among the top 20 countries in Asia with the highest maternal mortality rates (number 15) and is in the bottom ranking 11th in terms of percentage of births attended by skilled personnel.
- (2) The major causes of maternal mortality are hemorrhage and abortion. An estimated 4,600 mothers die annually of preventable childbirth-related problems and an estimated 400,000-500,000 abortions occur or are carried out, of which a significant number is attributed to unwanted pregnancies.
- (3) The highest maternal mortality rate is happening in the poorest regions of the country as well as in the national capital region. It is directly related to the unavailability of good health care.
- (4) NCSO statistics show that poverty is not declining. The situation is made more glaring by incidents of mothers killing their children and themselves, and children committing suicide because of grinding poverty.
- (5) The Philippines is a signatory to the 2015 Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) where it pledged to reduce by 75% the maternal deaths (goal number 5). To achieve the 2015 MDG, maternal mortality rate should decrease by 5.5% annually. Currently, it is decreasing only by 1.4%.
- (6) The House bill seeks to decrease mortality and to improve maternal care by improvement of emergency obstetrical care and by creation of facilities to oversee and evaluate the improvement in health outcomes.
- (7) All methods of achieving desired family size, whether by natural or artificial means, have their own flaws. For an overwhelming majority, however, these methods are safe and effective. These should be explained to couples so that they may freely choose for themselves which methods are best for them.

We uphold the Hippocratic Oath and strongly condemn abortion. Nowhere in either form, substance, or spirit of the bill is abortion legitimized. We, however, believe in alleviating suffering and in reducing deaths of patients who have had an abortion by providing them access to the proper care.

By the very nature of our profession and vocation, we exist to save lives not just of the unborn child but also of the life of the mother who dies needlessly because she has no access to the appropriate maternal care or the proper education with which to make an informed choice.

We believe in the principle of informed decision-making, not just on the choice and availability of family planning methods but also on the choice and availability of properly trained and professional healthcare providers.

We likewise believe that physicians and health care workers should not be coerced nor penalized if they do not adhere to measures which they believe are against their conscience and principles.

The status quo cannot continue; those who believe that everything is well are blind to the realities that already confront us. The refusal to look at these realities is a major obstacle to our country's progress. It is time for all of us to unite and to avoid emotional entanglement, extremism and the misuse of evidence-based information to disseminate half-truths for their own ends. To call the bill as pro-abortion is a falsehood.

The PCP is steadfast on its mandate to help improve the health landscape of our country. The PCP believes in continuous dialogue among concerned parties and encourages opening up of communication channels to other stakeholders. But the reproductive health bill must be passed... for the sake of the nation, in general, and the women and their children, in particular.

This position statement is a reiteration of the statement made by the Philippine College of Physicians in September 2008.

AFP to get P20B from sale of Jusmag property

By Philip C. Talavera

THE ARMED Forces of the Philippines (AFP) is expected to receive a total of more than P20 billion for its modernization program from the sale of one of its properties in Free Baseline, Siquijor City. A Basic Conversion and Development Authority (BCDA) official said yesterday.

BCDA Executive Vice President Nelson Nino said the disposition of the 14.5-hectare, later US Military Aviation Group (USAG) area in Free Baseline to realty developers would help fund the military modernization drive.

"The farming area will generate for the Armed Forces of the Philippines more than P20 billion over the years," Nino said.

The P20 billion is expected to fund the government's planned purchase of warships, jet fighters and other equipment to modernize the military in the coming years.

It intends to buy from the Italian Navy some year two Eurocopter class frigates armed with surface-to-air and surface-to-surface missiles and capable of anti-submarine warfare. The ships will cost P1.5 billion.

The Department of National Defense also plans to acquire 107-90 helicopter gunships from South Korea to replace the current helicopters.

This year, the military will also get two of four of 18 attack helicopters worth P1.2 billion from France; 11 CH-119 helicopters worth P1.2 billion, two multi-purpose attack craft (MPACs) and four Sub-C helicopters.

Nino announced the proposed would fall from the Jusmag (property) sale during BCDA's turnover of 64 residential units to Free Baseline to the AFP for the use of soldiers and their families.

"The BCDA does not only help the armed forces expedite the implementation of its modernization and capability upgrade program, but also encourages the economic growth of our soldiers through significant progressive land military dependent line a better quality of life," said AFP chief of staff Gen. Jesus Ardan.

"The return for the continuous assistance and benefits from the BCDA, the AFP assures that we will be more inclined to perform our mission of protecting the people and the state more effectively and efficiently," he added.

As of December last year, the BCDA has already received P15.1 billion to the AFP from the sale of its other real estate properties.

The House of Representatives has also approved a bill converting the AFP real estate law and providing it with a P5-billion budget over the years.

Undersecretary Francisco Manalo, who attended the turnover ceremony of the condominium units in behalf of Defense Secretary Voltaire Garcia, said these would help boost the morale of soldiers.

The AFP formally received the last modernized residential buildings, two condominium units and two lots of 180-square meters with three bedrooms. The five-story buildings with 16 units each will be housed a total of 64 families of active-duty soldiers.

This is part of the P20B Jusmag modernization program, a P20-billion project which aims to provide the AFP with 12 residential condominium buildings. Of the 12 buildings being constructed, six for families, nine buildings are reserved for the Philippine Army and one building for the Philippine Navy. The two other buildings are located within the extension area of the Philippine Air Force Museum in Free Baseline.

CEBU CITY—Edna Gam Garna, Dolyn Garna and seven others facing graft charges for the alleged irregular purchase of a beachfront property in Naga City, Cebu, are no longer tried abroad without permission from the Sandiganbayan.

But Garcia, who was scheduled to attend the canonization rites of Blessed Pedro Calungsod in the Vatican on Oct. 21, said she will file a motion to ask the San Diego Superior Court to lift the hold-down order against her.

"I would really, really hope that Ochoa will be represented in the person of the governor when the announcement of San Felipe Catedral will be read out on the 22nd of October," said Garcia.

"We hope that our EIR (reaction for reconsideration) will be seriously considered," she said.

the court, dated July 24, against Caruso and seven others who were charged with glib for the illegal purchase of 34.7 hectares of cropland worth

The order was signed by its author, Anthony Thomas Olin.

Also included on the hold-departure list are provincial treasurer Raj Sakshya, provincial health officer Ram Chandra retired provincial justice, Anthony Ferraro, provincial engineer Delgado Pizarro, former Board Member Juan Rold, businessman Amparo Rold and her spouse William Rold.

The Bureau of Immigration was directed to implement the order.

Gregory Underdowner for the Thyngs Village Appeal said the respondents could not leave the Philippines until they have been processed.

"The issuance of a hold-deposit order is automatic once charges are filed to court," said Insurance Claims Division.

"They should subject themselves to arraignment before they can seek the prosecution of the court in lower the country," said Auer.

Every time they would leave the country, they have to seek the permission of the court. Also, they have to report to the court once they come back home. The court

Garcia's lawyers have filed a motion asking the Office of the Inspectorman to reconsider its decision to include her on two counts of graft and one count of illegal use of public funds.

New Immigration Policy for Canada

Have you heard?

The Government of Canada on June 29, 2012 passed legislation terminating the processing of all pending Permanent Residence applications filed on or before February 27, 2008 under the Federal Skilled Worker Program. Around 294,000 applicants worldwide will have their applications reformed very soon without being processed and YOU COULD BE ONE OF THEM.

There is still a way!

If you are one of those affected by this law, do not be discouraged.

A team of the best immigration lawyers in Canada will be on your side to challenge the legality of this move by the Canadian Government.

"I have been an immigration lawyer for over 30 years. Throughout those years, I have helped those who hoped for a new life in Canada by providing advice -- of one who has experience, judgement and honesty. My legacy is founded on ensuring fairness and justice in the implementation of immigration policies."

RAINWATER PONDS

'Instant-noodle' fix to flooding

By Tony Ocasio Jr.

LET ME tell you a story. One day, UN scientists announced that in three days, because of rapid climate change and an impending 20-meter sea level rise, there would be massive floods all over the world.

The leader of the United Nations announced that in three days, they would build bridges that would accommodate all of the 300 million people of America. Then, they would all be saved. The leader of China announced that in three days, all 1.3 billion people of China would remain in the UN territory. Then, they would all be saved.

The leader of the Philippines went on a 10-minute rant and said, "My countrymen, the scientists told us that after three days, we will all be underwater because of floods and a 20-meter sea level rise. I believe our countrymen are still here three days to learn how to breathe underwater."

He Philippines are resilient and adaptable. No only need proper planning.

Causes of flooding

What causes flooding? Many reasons have been given: improper drainage, improper garbage disposal, rising sea level, poor planning, rapid climate change, etc. There are all of course. But the bottom line is that there is flooding in really every place. Every water has tendency to go.

Every problem contains the seed of its own solution. The answer to flooding is really very simple. Give the water more space to go.

But what have we done? We have paved with concrete all walkable lands—including wetlands, low-lying and flood-prone areas—and moved them into suburban and commercial centers.

In other words, when there would be water on walk business, we have paved it. And we have paved that there is water in the form of floods. Every city has paved its way to go.

New reason: extensive rain

Experts here have been telling us that there is no more rain. But the fact is, the more we pave, the more rain will be in the address in consequences.

A map from the US National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration shows the hottest areas on the surface temperature from 1982 to 2006 (see map 1). Note that the hottest patch of land (indicated by the hottest body of water) is located west of the Pacific Ocean, right east of the Philippines.

Scientific evidence shows that hot water is a hot line of more frequent and more intense typhoons. In fact, the more you heat the water, the more typhoons you get. With a hotter water temperature, there is greater evaporation and formation of clouds and heavier what goes up must come down, the heavier clouds come down as heavier rainfall.

So, the more we heat the water, the more rain we get. The more we heat the water, the more rain we get.

Water is collected through a comprehensive network of rivers, creeks, rivers and waterways. No only need proper planning.

By contrast, here we are, suffering from all these floods and yet, here we are, rarely seeing all of the available government lands in commercial buildings to be paved over with concrete. All in the name of development and progress.

The government should therefore find vacant spaces, especially in low-lying areas, and clear them fast and turn it into ponds, creeks and lakes so that excess water will have a place to go.

GMA lawyers to meet with docs on next legal move

By Christian E. Figueroa

FORMER President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo is not hesitating jumping on the opportunity to get out of the country despite her doctor's findings that her condition is life-threatening and that she needs to seek immediate medical attention abroad.

Under Attorney General Juan Manuel Santos, Arroyo's legal team is working to get her out of the country as soon as possible, according to sources.

Sources said Arroyo's lawyers were ready to meet with her doctors to discuss her next legal move. Arroyo is facing charges of electoral fraud in a 2007 regional trial court and possible charges of other crimes in the ongoing case.

In Belen, Arroyo, a one-time president of the United States and a member of the United States and Australia where they are used to handling cases with respect to her health.

Arroyo has undergone surgery three times for an ailment of the heart in the last. "She knows the legal process but there is no marching order to go to (ask) for a travel document from the court," said

Santos, who placed the burden of proof on Arroyo's legal team to show other documents.

Political repercussions

Sources learned of political repercussions if Arroyo's legal team did not proceed, based on the medical treatment abroad.

"It would be a disaster if something happens to her, a disaster for the administration because she is the population's icon," said Santos. "If she is not here, they will not be able to do anything."

"Whether we like it or not, the president of the people will be that she is not here," he added.

Stopped from leaving

The government stopped a scheduled flight from Manila to Mexico City International Airport on November 10, 2011, as the plane was about to take off.

Arroyo's legal team said it was not in a hurry to leave the country, but the government's action was a setback.

The Department of Justice and the Commission on Elections refused the investigation of Arroyo's legal team to leave the country.

Manila City Regional Trial Court Judge Juan Miguel said the court's 112th branch previously ordered Arroyo to leave the country, but she was not allowed to leave only by a court order.

She won't escape

Sources said that Arroyo had committed to face the charges against her.

"She will not run away," he said. "She will always respond to the court."

The MARCH (Manila Association of Human Rights) said it would be a setback if Arroyo's legal team did not proceed.

Blind architect keeps building 'inclusive society' for PWDs

By Magnus C. Ortiz
Contributor

A LOT still has to be done in the country for people with disabilities (PWDs), but architect Jaime Silva is thankful for small victories.

Over the past 10 years, he co-opts, he has been giving lectures to shopping mall "front liners" — the security guards and house-keeping personnel — on how they can help build an inclusive society for PWDs.

He remains on target in his advocacy, despite being blind himself. Silva lost his vision 10 years ago.

One such victory, according to Silva, took place when he

Sun Business forms partnership with JCI Manila

Sun Business, the corporate arm of Sun Cellular, officially established a strategic partnership with Junior Chambers International (JCI) Manila last July 17, 2013 at the Manila Hotel.

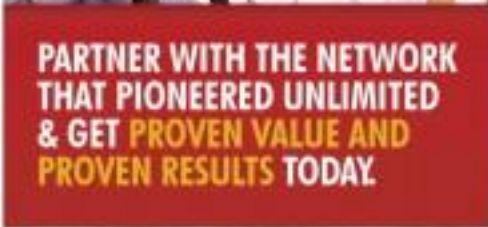

The partnership is part of Sun Business' Sun Partner Program, aiming to provide efficient communication solutions to JCI Manila, its members and affiliates. "It is our privilege to work hand-in-hand with an organization as noble as JCI Manila. We will ensure that Sun Business' services will enable young Jaycees to become productive and empowered members of society," says Corina Zablan, WFP of Sun Cellular. "We look forward to working with JCI Manila on three projects and collaborating with them on business solutions, products to help boost and strengthen their business," she adds.

Founded in 1947, JCI Manila was formed to develop and enhance the leadership skills of young Filipino men. Many of the most prominent in both the government and private sectors enjoy membership in the organization.

Offering various corporate solutions, Sun Business provides companies — both large and small — a wide range of innovative products and services designed to address specific communication needs.

BTW: It's developed as a retirement home, Campomanahan-Highland Resort is now being positioned as a tourist destination.

New eco-tourism destination rises in Negros

By Carla Gomez
Inquirer Staff

BAKODON CITY—A five-hectare tract in Talibay City, Negros Occidental will soon start operations as an eco-tourism destination and give a boost to the city's tourism industry.

The resort, called Campomanahan Highland Resort, is located in Barangay Cabaoguan near the town along the boundary of the city of Bacolod and Talibay and provides a view of most of Negros Occidental and Panay Island as a backdrop.

The site of the resort was acquired by Ricardo Yee, formerly an assistant secretary of the Department of Transportation and Communications, for his wife who asked that it be named after her husband.

The said five-hectare Campomanahan property is 300 ft

Resort seeks to boost tourism earnings of Negros Occidental above the resort site, adding it was big with water and hill to have multiple places.

But the couple began their investment when they saw the potential of the area as a tourist venue. They then have allowed time developing the place as a resort.

It will be a resort that both foreign and local tourists will enjoy, Yee said.

"We have the best view of the area," he said.

On a clear day from the resort, one can see the coastline and the Bacolod city airport, but better enjoying the sea in Panay, or the view over the island City while the sun shines over the mountains and cities.

And at night, one can see the distant lights of Negros cities from the resort, where the air is fresh and the soothing sounds of nature help you to sleep.

The resort, which is about 15 to 40 minutes from downtown Bacolod City, has a main big cabin with seven rooms and a large balcony for entertainment. It also has 20 cottages shaped like huts of early tribesmen, which are built like the huts of early tribes.

It has a playground, adult and children's pools with diving rooms shaped like glass tree trunks and picnic huts.

The grounds have figures of an elephant and dinosaur made of concrete, with more animal figures being planned.

Yee said they have invested a substantial amount in the resort, which has overnight accommodations for 120 persons in the big cabin and cottages. It also has a complex where guests could put up tents.

The construction of the resort started last June 2011 and will ongoing.

A garden for swimming and parties and an artificial river are also being built at the resort. Yee also plans to erect his famous Shangri-La restaurant.

The resort will also have a place where guests can go horseback riding, a nature garden, and a wedding area and lounge for couples who wish to get married there, he said.

Yee said he designed the facility at the resort along with his architect, while his wife has been busy with the landscaping.

He also added that development of the resort in the area would improve the livelihood of residents as the town would be the major city gate.

The resort will also help boost the city's tourism industry.

Talibay City has registered an increase in the number of tourists in 2009 and 2010. In 2009, the city recorded 20,440 tourists, up from the 12,361 in the previous year. Tourism revenue grew by 10.1% in 2010.

One of Talibay City's attractions is the ruins, a great museum built by Don Mariano Lacson following the death of his son, Maria Ines.

However, a fire set by guerrilla fighters during the Japanese occupation in the museum could not be used as a headquarters of Japanese forces, reduced the structure to ruins, but left the foundations standing.

The other structures are the Santa Maria, Lauro, General Pineda, the Don Mariano Lacson Museum, Barangay Campomanahan and Lacson Museum, the Manila High Wood Corp House and the Honorable Legarda and Wenceslao Pineda, among others.

Talibay City government also plans to implement a restoration and redevelopment project of the city's glass complex. This aims to convert the glass, the Talibay City General Public Market and the old Talibay City Hall into a mixed-use facility.

Aside from this, the historical San Nicholas de Tolentino Church which was built in 1900 and the old Lacson mansion will be restored and converted to highlight the richness of Talibay's history that will boost the project's tourism value.

Young set invests time, effort in web design firm

By Gabriel Cardenas
Inquirer Staff Writer

DAGUPAN CITY—Twenty-five-year-old Mable Angela Fernandez dreamed of having her own company and making it succeed.

He was still an information technology student then but he was already designing websites with the passion and enthusiasm of a child playing with a favorite toy.

Two months ago, Fernandez decided to start her own web design and development firm, Mable Angela Fernandez and Ronald de Leon, launched Pixel Hub Creative, the first web design agency in Dagupan City.

"We're so excited to have this business and this office," says Fernandez, the company's managing director.

But before getting where they are now, Fernandez and his friends had to work in different places, adapt to different work environments and deal with different clients.

After his college graduation in 2008, Fernandez was hired as web designer and developer by The Design People in Alanya, Manila. After two years, he went freelance and had his client—DS One/CS Studio, a web designer and developer firm based in Pasig, California, San Francisco, an online marketing organization based in Singapore, and Paper Boat Creative, a web design firm based in London.

"I was inspired by The Design People, my first company. They started small and look at them now, I admire, proud, glad to see he does," says Fernandez, a native of Benguet province.

Business 30, a computer engineering program, used to be a freelance web and graphic designer.

In 2008, all of them based in the US, included the software giant Microsoft, entered custom and made products like Shiny and telecommunication firm Netcom.

"We are up at this company here in Dagupan, and let me be honest, it's because the culture of hard work, honesty and to be in local clients," says Fernandez, the company's creative director, who is from Marikina City.

De Leon, 30, has worked for more than six years as software engineer in different companies in the US. He is now connected with the International Information Inc., an award-winning game and software company in the US.

Fernandez says they had to put together part of their savings to set up their office and pay for their operating expenses, such as rental, utilities and salaries of their employees.

"We really had to sacrifice," he says. But knowing that their investment is the best of their savings because they are happy they have a good business here.

"That was our first step. We are just down, especially now that we are in the digital age," Fernandez says.

Fernandez says being the first web design company with an office in the province gives them an edge over freelance web designers.

"It's about time. Having a physical office builds trust," Fernandez says. "It's because there are many businesses who do not have a project and the clients do not know where to look for them."

Today, Fernandez's team is actively working on some projects and negotiating with several local clients.

In April, the company "launched" the design Pixel Hub—its website www.pixelhubcreative.com, Microsoft as a client. They also negotiated the Pixel Hub program government's website www.pixelhubcreative.com in Manila.

Fernandez says one of the challenges the team is dealing with right now is obtaining some of their clients.

"Some people are hesitant to spend for a website. So we tell them why they need a website and how it actually helps business," Fernandez says.

Some prospective clients, he says, also find it expensive to have a website. "We do a lot of explaining why it is so. We have to explain the specifications," he says.

But he says it will not take long for business owners here to realize when a website can do for their business. "We are in Dagupan City and Metro Manila."

From an experience, Fernandez, a former student of the Dagupan City School of Education, says he can do for their business. "We are in Dagupan City and Metro Manila."

Should Ads Indulge In Trivializing?

By Roger Iv

What is your attitude towards advertising that trivializes or competes? Would you want to purchase a monopolistic business? If you desperately need a new service, would you want a one-track carrier and not give a choice? Would you want to go back to the decade-old building just to get internet?

Who is going to protect the consumer? What is the consumer's guarantee? Would he be happy to see after and never experience brand failure if he switches to a brand brand-building to high because it is the best of perfection?

Why do some brands go on a media-buying binge and spending huge money? Should the question be: are they trying to cover for their own inadequacy? With all the marketing frenzy that is happening, we need the strength of consumer protection to be vigilant, always on alert, and never failing to take the credit for the consumer.

upholding truth in advertising.

One only needs to see the many complaints against a television brand to know that all network not working, dropped calls, slow internet and delayed messages are happening to them in their speech. So why switch? Check it out.

The consumer is not dumb nor to know the difference.

The Ad Standards Council, (policy-making body of advertising in the Philippines) clearly states the line. In its latest rules of conduct, ASC's Article IV, Sections 1, 2 and 3 clearly state the following: "Advertising copy, slogan or terms should not be used to mislead or confuse the consumer as to the material, content, origin, utility or function of any product or service."

An unqualified, sweeping or superlative claim may be permitted only if proven to be true on all material aspects in relation to all products or services, whether competitive or non-competitive.

On misleading representations, here's what it says: "An advertisement must not create confusion as to the identity of the advertiser or product."

Moreover, it states: "Product features/benefits being compared should be verifiable, reasonable and/or defensible."

Putting down competitors to one's own brand is a bad game in the month, even so if the problem also affects the advertiser.

In its latest advertising campaign, a television brand trivialized dropped calls, delayed messages, slow internet connection and unjustifiably makes a generic slogan against networks that are supposedly not worth the consumer's patronage.

In one ad, it uses comedian to indulge in making a monologue out of a monolith. In the story, he portrays a rich guy out to marry the woman of his dreams. Holding a diamond ring up high, he makes a marriage proposal over the phone in his chandelied, lavished mansion. Winking romantically, he goes into what the lady suddenly spatters and asks for so sitcom. The brand then promotes it, and gets into the picture: Dropped calls? It asks and then offers a solution: "Time to charge, live now."

In the second series, the campaign takes it to three different locations: a guide school guidance counselor's office, laundry room in a restaurant and hospital emergency clinic. Here, the ad then down allowing us to take a peek to three different situations where a supposed-to-be "best message came in last" accompanying the character in the story.

At the first, it asks the audience a presumptuous question: Delayed messages? It promptly offers the same solution.

In the third ad, it manages to tie to the main character's favorite watering hole. Some call writing, with four different girls, each time. Would a guy never call a pretty woman, even a doctor, a vamp, or a sugar-sweet colleague? All the characters must be a nondescript copy: "You never called," "It is not working," "It is not working," "It is not working." The ad then takes us down to novelty with a slapstick visual punning on a circular ring spinning clockwise.

In the fourth ad, the brand complex the trivial pun with a young man, his lady and a pet dog in three different locations. They all look dated and stressed out apparently caused by slow internet connections. Having dismantled the problem, it asks a problem that is also being asked by a consumer: How internet connections?

On the website, the brand goes on to ask the consumer to sign up by quoting subscribers experiencing dropped calls, delayed messages and slow internet connections.

Why would a telecom company resort to competition baiting? Is the tide running against them and business is taking away?

Let the consumer decide. Let's give due respect to him and even to our staunchest business rivals. Let the spirit of fair trade practice in the industry prevail.

THE 'MOM PORN' EVERYBODY'S TALKING ABOUT

'Fifty Shades of Grey': A literary one-night stand

Ms. A.9.2.15. 18th century

ONE of the first comic novels that made an impression on me when I was in grade school (though I was precocious, and my father was liberal) was a novel by then best-selling writer Harold Robbins, "The Boss," published in 1971 and set during the heyday of the automotive industry in Detroit in the earlier '20s.

My friends and I had read other more explicit (and often) stuff by then, but there was that indefinable sense where powerful company patriarch Louis Brandeis, already condemned as a strict sex-morale and essentialist in handling a formal dinner (if he were to have had both his own daughter to live with and the French mistress flower in it, make her wedding gown on the same day [see I digress]).

Hispanic teacher behind and under the dome of the surprised young woman sitting beside him, and, in mid-moment, in front of an unsmiling, Cuban high society person to whom he is. The plot is initially shocked—but is soon spinning its badly contained truths. It was the same of my mind, I thought there, and quite the lowest of only a few more.

The gallery of writers of exotic literature is a colorful one, ranging from such characters as R.H. Lawrence, George Miller and Anita May to Siddons, Erica Jong, and more recently Anne Rice, writing as J.N. Roquemore in the days before the hot sex-suffrage scene erupted.

I was dropped at the door of this like many other girls, who wanted to succeed unaided, untutored at home, commissioned to be steadily write poems, she [an outside's view in her elegance, and still came up with some things like "Tears of Glass,"

I read "Lady Chatterley's Lover" but couldn't quite get past Wilton's gamekeeper's insouciant doze. Keri's wild and fantastic theory on Sleeping Beauty (which, as I noted, has deflowered me like an innocent prince) was a gift from my alarm, vision, and love as many books and came to its exonerating climax plot as it has small encounters (and there are a lot, in every imaginable permutation).

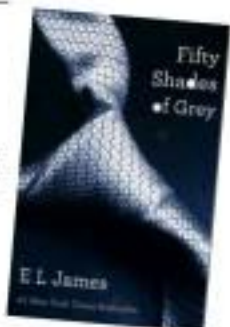

Intellectual Property

Intellectual interest
I thoughtfully didn't turn into a devotee of a symposium, even as I developed an intellectual interest in erotica—after all, they say the mind is the biggest sex organ in one's body. When did I learn that, you ask?

Yes, it can be a fun read, but it is basically a sexed-up romance novel that you won't remember much the morning after.

ing E.L. James' much-talked-about Fifty Shades of Grey, which is now reported to be surpassing the sales of Fifty Shades books and has been on the New York Times bestseller list for months.

It's the first in a trilogy written by a former TV executive (swearing bells here).

Why anger always hurts us

Anger is a powerful emotion that can drive us to great heights or great lows. It's a natural part of being human, but it's also one of the most destructive forces we have. When we're angry, our judgment is clouded, and we're more likely to act impulsively and say things we regret.

The philosopher Seneca advised that the greatest remedy for anger is delay. In other words, take a step back and breathe before reacting. This can help you gain perspective and avoid saying or doing things you'll regret later.

How renowned perfumer Francis Kurkdjian designs his scents

I dress men and women with my perfume, wrap them with my art and with my love

By Carmelita S. Soan
 Contributor

I'M NOT interested in fragrances per se," says perfumer Francis Kurkdjian. "It's simply a way for me to express myself."

Six years ago, Kurkdjian opened a house of boutique fragrances, the first he'd ever. In 2005, he met his would-be business partner, Marc Chaya, who was ready to quit his job as a partner at the professional services firm Ernst & Young. Instead, he made a small team, soon joined by Marc Chaya's brother, Marc Chaya, and Marc Chaya's brother, Marc Chaya.

Kurkdjian's vision was to create a brand of "luxury" fragrances that would be as much a part of the lifestyle as the fragrance itself. He wanted to create a brand that would be as much a part of the lifestyle as the fragrance itself.

"The image is like creating a masterpiece," says Kurkdjian. "You go from a small idea to a big idea, and in my vision, what's missing is a daily ready-to-use type of perfume." "I want to be seen as a brand that is a reflection of the modern woman, a woman on the go, just like my client."

In 2005, he was named one of the top 100 designers in the world by Time magazine. He was also named one of the top 100 designers in the world by Time magazine. He was also named one of the top 100 designers in the world by Time magazine.

"It's long-lasting and effective—something that's not just a trend but a lifestyle," says Kurkdjian. "I don't see and women with my perfume wrap them with my art and with my love."

Cebu witnesses its most elegant wedding in years

It was a beautiful day in Cebu, Philippines, as the city witnessed its most elegant wedding in years. The ceremony was held at the prestigious Cebu City Hall, where the newlyweds exchanged vows in a grand celebration.

The bride, a beautiful young woman, wore a stunning white gown and a long veil. The groom, a handsome young man, wore a tuxedo. They were surrounded by family and friends, all of whom were dressed in formal attire.

The ceremony was officiated by a priest, who read the wedding vows and pronounced the couple man and wife. The couple then shared a kiss, and the wedding was over. The reception was held at a grand ballroom, where the newlyweds were greeted by their guests.

The reception was a grand affair, with a large buffet table and a live band. The newlyweds danced the night away, and their guests enjoyed the celebration. The wedding was a truly memorable event, and it was a day that everyone will remember for years to come.

Celebration of Man in his amazing totality

VIEWFINDER

By
F. Barry

THE OPENING ceremonies of the 2012 Olympics in London were an triumphantly moving, creative, exciting and inspirational show, right after they were concluded, the night's conclusion was striking. "What will they do for us now?" And "How can they possibly top that?"

Well, only last Monday morning we woke up before the crack of dawn to catch the Games' closing show—and we had our answer.

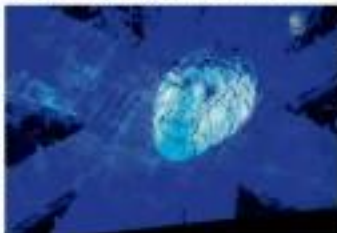

They put forward the impossible ideal: every athlete should make every effort to surpass their previous achievement. Two- or three weeks ago, around they did something else. They threw a big, noisy ball, clapping and living every party the literally thousands of enthusiastic happy athletes, fans and viewers from all over the world.

Medley of songs

In, instead of amazing athletic feats that lasted with their own and brilliant creativity, the closing ceremony spent for a medley of songs that emotionally "inspired" everyone with their beautiful lyrics and incredible lyrics.

One of the highlights of the long program, musically enough, was John Lennon's premonition on them, "Imagine."

The pride of place that is now given to the show's closing song is

There was in itself an exciting statement that placed global sports with a new and more valuable context than previously "imagined" possible. Not only did sports provide courage, determination and glory for country, but they are also capable of loving beauty, and making the national and national world only if temporarily, one.

To achieve from otherwise ordinary nations focused on writing new records in their chosen sports, they "Imagine" some of the most, political and economic issues that had occurred them in the distant and recent past.

Sports and arts

Even before the use of "Imagine" as a sort of Olympic musical anthem for the whole celebration, it seemed obvious and obvious, not just about the power of sports to lead and unite, but also about the ordinary ability of music, and the ability to reflect their equally beautiful perfect take on mankind.

What of the time, sports and the arts travel in separate ways and are, in fact, in some people's views, sports focus on the body while the arts affect the mind, we hardly ever see them overlap concepts.

At the Olympics, however, they do, become one, with the arts celebrating human physical achievement, and together transforming it into a truly exceptional experience.

The theme song's title, "Imagine," sums up this balance concept: physical power of the arts to vividly remember the physically human body being.

How to bring out just one in his physique, but also because he can use his imagination to make himself even better and more powerful than he already is.

In other words, the opening show was summed up by the words spoken by the person: "Make sure in every sense you need to be a healthy body."

At the London Olympics, Lennon's beautifully inspirational anthem gave that extra moment of vision and vision, as the Games he already concluded their celebration of Man in his amazing body—body, mind, heart and soul.

Hilarious 'Harry Potter' parody coming to Manila

Even J.K. Rowling wanted to see the show's sold-out run in Edinburgh, but was turned away

LEW BRIDGES—A living, breathing "Harry Potter" parody that began as a live sketch about show in the United Kingdom is coming to Manila. "Parody Potter," which started a 30-day tour around Australia, the last production and finally show, is currently performing in London at the Little Shubert Theatre in New York where we are currently on tour.

David "Glen" Clarkson and Jefferson "Jeff" Davis, who jointly wrote the parody of the series "Harry Potter" books, also met to the extended off-Broadway stop of the show.

Jeff plays Harry while Glen plays Hermione. Other characters in a loose way through J.K. Rowling's wildly popular book series.

They draw laughs by using simple props—like sticks, wands, and hand puppets—to create some of the high lights in the world of Harry Potter, including a live game of Quidditch that the audience gets to join. From Jeff's side, we see how the books are being to have a good time.

Only in Hollywood: Jefferson Davis

Parody Potter

Since Davis and Jeff have to stay in New York to see the show, they have been extended there, even other performers...Gary, David, and Anne Wilson—all met in the Manila production that runs from Aug. 20 to Sept. 2 at the Little Shubert Theatre.

Backstage after their well-received performance at the Little Shubert, Jeff said it took time and that a long time to cast the Manila production. Jeff wanted very glad about finding Gary and Anne. They are very good actors, "he says."

But, a lot of time on stage, with finding performers to play the roles in the show's Philippine stop was a "valuable thing to do. We had a lot of good experiences. They are better than we have seen them do. We have seen them do it. We wanted to see them. It's better to have a body and we have seen them with comedy."

Both Davis and Jeff are more confident before the show. The audience was there—which a bookstore commissioned them to do in the meantime from writing for the midnight edition of the show "Theater" book in 2005—has taken them to 10. "That was just seven years ago," Jeff said. "We got paid 100 pounds."

The Manila show went on to develop a full-length show, which took them around the UK, including London and Edinburgh. "They were very good," Davis repeated. "We said, 'Oh, we're in London. We went to the West End. We thought, it can't get better than this. There are no real comedians in New York.'"

He laughed as he noted the show's success, even though "it's just two good movies around." The show is still going on. "It's a beautiful success with which we need to be," Davis said. "I loved being there."

Jeff said he was supposed to be in the show at the time, but he was turned away. Davis said that, after the show, they

Expanding Opportunities Worldwide

Since 1985, ACDI/VOCA has empowered people in 145 developing and transitional nations to succeed in the global economy. ACDI/VOCA currently has an approximate of 85 projects in 60 countries and revenues of $140 million. We are seeking candidates for Technical Specialists for an anticipated multiple maternal and child health program in Philippines. The project aims to strengthen the capacity of public and private organizations in the Philippines to deliver a comprehensive package of reproductive health and preventive maternal and child health services in Mindanao. The project will be based in Mindanao and these positions are contingent on ACDI/VOCA being awarded the project.

Anticipated positions include: Chief of Party, Family Planning/Maternal, Neonatal, Child Health and Nutrition (FP/MNCHN) Specialist, Behavior Change Communication (BCC) Specialist, Training Manager, Finance Manager

Qualifications: All candidates should be fluent in English, Tagalog, Visayan or other languages spoken in Mindanao. Experience working in conflict/post-conflict environments is strongly preferred.

Chief of Party:

- Master's degree in public health, nutrition, medicine (M.D.), social sciences, or a related field is required.
- Minimum of 10 years as Chief of party on projects of at least $10 million and at least three years of experience managing health/nutrition programs.
- Familiarity with the Philippine health system and local culture is required; previous program management in the Philippines is strongly preferred.

Family Planning/Maternal, Neonatal, Child Health and Nutrition (FP/MNCHN) Specialist:

- Advanced degree (at least master's level) in public health, medicine (M.D.), social sciences (such as medical anthropology), or other fields related to the contents of the project.
- Demonstrated understanding and familiarity with issues faced by health workers involved in the provision of FP/MNCHN services, in either the public or the private sectors.

Behavior Change Communication (BCC) Specialist:

- Demonstrated understanding and familiarity with development communication issues and solutions, especially in public health.
- Demonstrated experience providing technical assistance in behavior change communication projects, with emphasis on US government-funded health programs in the region.

Training Manager

- At least 10 years of experience working on public health projects, with experience designing and conducting training activities.
- Demonstrated experience developing and delivering training curricula for training of Trainers and technicians.

Finance Manager

- Strong accounting knowledge, USGAAP project experience preferred.
- Minimum five years professional experience working in financial management, procurement and grants management experience useful. Experience working with nonprofits preferred.

Mercedes-Benz's E-Class wins third time in a row along with other awards

J.D. Power and Associates, one of the world's leading model awards companies recently published its latest survey on driver satisfaction with Mercedes-Benz vehicles among its driver winners in their categories to include the A-Class, C-Class and the E-Class. In addition, Mercedes-Benz also took second first place in the study among all brands. At the same time, Mercedes-Benz has also been voted the strongest brand in the AECI (AutoMarket) study.

With the promise that the owner of a car is best placed to know its strengths and weaknesses, J.D. Power 2012 Vehicle Ownership Satisfaction Study (VOCSS) used some 14,399 drivers in Germany who responded to an online survey to assess the quality and reliability of their cars, all of which had been driven for around two years. In addition to assessing make, for service and ownership costs, drivers also assessed how appealing they considered their cars to be. Based on the responses received, the market researchers drew up complete feature lists of those vehicles achieving best satisfaction, comprising 78 models from 20 manufacturers in eight categories. In four of these categories, Mercedes-Benz has taken first place in the ranking. "Overall VOCSS - Overall", its A-Class model scored top marks for satisfaction in the Compact Class in the Midsize Premium category, the C-Class landed first place in the subcompact segment and for the third time in succession the E-Class won top mark in customer satisfaction in the Executive Luxury Car category.

According to Dr. Joachim Schenk, Director of the Board of Mercedes-Benz Cars responsible for Sales and Marketing, "We are delighted that we have once again been able to win our top places in the J.D. Power Study 2012. Our vision for the future is to continue to set the highest of standards, not only in terms of quality, service, and ecology, but of course also with our styling designs, technological technology and high levels of driving pleasure. As a result we hope that the Mercedes-Benz brand will continue to be extremely well received by our customers." The J.D. Power Vehicle Ownership Satisfaction Study conducted by the global market research company J.D. Power, based in Los Angeles, is seen as an important guide for vehicle buyers.
